TO-DAY'S CABLES.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail)

TO HUNT FORDOL PRINCE AROUND THE WORLD TRIP.

LONDON, June 14.
The yacht "Malay," is about to leave London on a thirty thousand mile world trip through the Atlantic and the Pacific visiting New Guinea and carrying a scientific expedition led by Doctor Cottle, a young Liverpool scientist, especially to hunt dolphins on behalf of the British Museum with a view to obtaining a completer classification thereof.

U. S. SHIP SUBSIDY BILL.

A GOOD DEAL OF OPPOSITION.

WASHINGTON, June 14.
President Harding has informed the chairman of the house rules committee that unless the ship subsidy Bill is passed before the adjournment he will feel obliged to call a special session to deal with it. The Bill is meeting with considerable opposition on the ground that it is likely to involve retaliatory measures by other powers and may hence defeat its own object.

CHICAGO, June 14.
A convention of the American Federation of Labour has unanimously carried a resolution condemning the ship subsidy Bill as inimical to the public interest and destructive of the hope of the nation's sea power. A protest has been forwarded to congress.

COUNTY CRICKET.

MANY CENTURIES SCORED.

LONDON, June 13.
Playing at Bradford, Surrey won in the first innings from Yorkshire for whom Irem and Sutcliffe made 115
in the first innings.

Kent had a victory of an innings and 205 runs over Essex at Tonbridge. For the winners Bickmore scored 120, Seymour 159 and Hurst 110.

At Stourbridge Warwickshire beat Worcestershire by 223 runs, Smith scoring 115 in Warwickshire's second innings.

Derbyshire won by 158 runs from Gloucestershire at Gloucester.

Hampshire, playing against Leicestershire at Southampton, won in the first innings. For Hampshire, Mead made 105 in the first innings and King scored 132
in Leicestershire's first innings.

At Brighton Sussex won by an innings and 12 runs from Northamptonshire. For Sussex Watson made 111
in the first innings.

SOUTH AFRICAN ARRESTS DENIED.

A BOGUS REUTER MESSAGE.

With reference to Reuter's telegram from Pretoria regarding arrests for treason (cabled June 11) it transpires that Reuter has been made a victim of forgery.
The telegram bore the signature of Reuter's correspondent at Pretoria and was correctly and regularly addressed but the correspondent sent no such message nor has he any knowledge of it. The matter has been in the hands of the police.

The June 11 cable stated:—
Five prominent nationalist leaders have been arrested for high treason. They include the secretary of the Transvaal Nationalist Party, the editor of the newspaper "Ons Vaderland" and General Pienaar.
A further message received yesterday stated this to be incorrect.

on June 15. Thereafter Doctor Struycken, Councillor

foreign affairs, will act. The latter two will also represent Holland on the non-Russian commission which assembles on June 26.

FRANCE TO SEND EXPERTS.

PARIS, June 13.
It is announced that as the Hague conference is of a purely technical character and is not empowered to decide any question without reference to governments, the French cabinet has decided to send a mission of enquiry composed of experts to be appointed later. A Bill will be submitted to parliament assigning part of the balance of the remaining vote for Genoa as expenses of the experts thus permitting parliament to express an opinion regarding the Hague conference.

RUSSIA'S REQUIREMENTS.

CAN BE HAD FOR CASH.

LONDON, June 13.
In the House of Commons at question time Sir W.
Mitchell-Thomson said he was informed that some orders were being placed by Russia in this country, usually, he understood, upon a cash basis. There was no bar to Russia's obtaining practically all her requirements if she was ready with the actual cash.

DROUGHT AT HOME.

LONDON, June 13.

that the relief is only temporary.

over seven million people in the Volga valley on May expected to reach eight hundred thousand on July 1.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)

PANIC ON THE VIENNA BOURSE.

VIENNA, June 13th.—
Panic conditions prevail on the bourse where the pound is recording 100,000 crowns, equivalent to a 30 per cent. rise since June 8th. This is attributed to unfavourable reports regarding the prospect of credits. The bourse has closed.
Pessimism in business circles is hourly increasing. Everybody is rushing to buy foreign money, fearing that the crown will become valueless. Some of the principal industrialists are refusing orders in crown. Coal dealers are thus suffering business despite an abundance of coal supplies. This desperate situation has revived the campaign in favour of economic union with Germany.

MONARCHIST DEMONSTRATIONS IN GERMANY.

BERLIN, June 13th.—
That nationalism, feeling is still high in Germany, is evidenced by demonstrations and disorders at Koenigsberg and Munich. The Government forbade the demonstrations at Koenigsberg in commemoration of the Hindenburg victory at Tanenberg, but both the Reichwehr and the marines disobeyed, the latter marching in a procession with loaded rifles.
A clash with a labour counter-demonstration resulted in many casualties, including one workman killed by a bayonet thrust.

Herr Ebert, who is visiting Munich, was hoisted and jeered at by crowds of monarchists, who pulled down the Republican flag at the station, prior to the President's arrival. Trade-unionists lined the streets, and conflicts ensued, but there were no casualties, as no soldiers were present.

HENLEY REGATTA ENTRIES.

LONDON, June 13th.—
At a meeting of the Henley Regatta stewards held in London, the Secretary reported that the entries of the Marne Club for the Grand Challenge, and Beylen, the Canadian champion, in the Diamond Sculls, were not in order, owing to the necessary papers in accordance with rule four, which defines stewards, according to the Amateur Rowing Association ideas, not being received.

The failure of the Canadian sculler to give evidence of his bona fides is not surprising, as he doubtless recognised the fact that he had no chance against Hoover, the American crack, who recently defeated him at Philadelphia.

It is thought possible, that the failure of the French eight to complete their entry, is due to a movement in France to recognise the National Amateur Rowing Association as the governing body over rowing in Great Britain.

ENGINEERING DISPUTE SETTLED.

LONDON, June 13th.—
The three months old engineering dispute has been settled, as the Amalgamated Engineers' Union ballot resulted in 75,478 voting in favour of acceptance of the employers' terms and 39,423 voting against.

ALLEGED SEDITION IN THE TRANSVAAL.

PRETORIA, June 13th.—
The alleged arrest of five prominent nationalists mentioned in a cable yesterday proves to be incorrect.

THE BANQUE INDUSTRIELLE.

PARIS, June 13th.—
It is stated that the 10,000,000 francs wanted by the society of management over the affairs of the Banque Industrielle have already been found, notwithstanding the present difficulties of getting funds for business of this description.

The Tribunal of Commerce has dismissed the application of shareholders of the Banque Industrielle, mentioned in a cable message of May 18th.

The Tribunal of Commerce found that it was unable to ascertain at present whether three-quarters of the capital had been lost. It pointed out that the only data acceptable was the Banque's statement of July last year, showing an excess of liabilities amounting to 4,500,000 francs, while the capital was 150,000,000 francs.

[The cable message referred to, stated that an application had been lodged by two shareholders for the dissolution of the Banque Industrielle de Chine, on the ground that the bank has lost three-quarters of its capital. The bank's counsel denied this.]

OPIMUM SMOKING IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, June 13th.—
In rejecting an appeal by two Chinese who were fined £25 for opium-smoking at Liverpool, the Stipendiary Magistrate declined, however, to endorse the Magistrate's recommendation for deportation, because there was no evidence that the practice of opium-smoking was spreading to British residents.

Witnesses stated that apart from smoking and gambling, the Chinese were generally law abiding.

NEW JAPANESE GOVERNMENT FOREIGN POLICY.

TOKYO, June 13th.—
The Foreign Minister, Count Uchida, in a statement to the press said that the "foreign policy of the Kato Ministry does not involve changes, and will give effect to the agreements concluded, and directions made at Washington. Japan is at present strictly neutral toward China, and when a united and stable Government is established, Japan, as well as the other powers, is willing to extend the necessary financial assistance. The withdrawal of troops from Hankow, Peking and other points in North China was only delayed owing to the disturbed conditions. The situation in Siberia does not justify an immediate withdrawal of troops, but when order has been restored, and the protection of Japanese residents guaranteed, the troops will speedily be withdrawn."

YAKS AND THINGS.

It was startling at first to read in one of our contemporaries that our P. W. D. has been using yaks as draft animals. On reflection, however, we decided that it was a good thing, bound to attract business to our town; and we sent at once a private message to our M. O. H. asking him to use his influence with the Head of the Sanitary Department to import a few llamas for the night-soil carts. In the present state of our Fire Department, mad on motors, we fear it would be useless to advocate camels, though we firmly believe in them. Fires always attract attention for their own sake, like dog fights, but just think of the added zoological excitement of camels trotting up with the fire engine. As for the P. W. D., the yak experiment deserves every encouragement, and we hope Mr. Perkins will not stop there. If yaks do well, elephants should do better. Failing the P.W.D., we recommend elephants to the Telephone Company. One elephant could draw a cable through a trench where it now takes twenty coolies. In one matter we think the Telegraph was a trifle unjust to the P. W. D. It suggested on Monday evening that the yoke of the yak is too low. "It is true," said our contemporary, "that the formation of the yak's neck tends downward, but in the carts to which we refer the cross-bar, unless we are altogether mistaken, depresses the head much below the natural level." This is due, we suppose, to our contemporary's unfamiliarity with the yak, which carries its head habitually very low, as it finds its way entirely by the scent, which it sweeps up as it goes with its long hair and bushy tail. We hope the P.W.D. is right, and the Encyclopaedia Britannica wrong, in the matter of acclimatization, for the latter authority says yaks will not live at low elevations. This explains why they have hitherto been confined to the highlands of Tibet. But the P.W.D. must have obtained later and better information or they would surely never have dared to substitute this delicate creature of the eternal snows for the sturdy and hardy warm country carabao which has served them so long and so faithfully. One wonders, even while giving them credit for knowing what they were doing, if they took sufficient advice before deciding upon importing these yaks. Good authorities have no hesitation in declaring that llamas would have been preferable. Even the llamas which we recommended for the night-soil carts might have been a better investment for the P. W. D. True, they might have needed more of them, but the cost of feeding and stabling would be correspondingly less. Besides, their habit of spitting seems somehow appropriate to the genus locus. As for camels, we were never more serious. We have seen what they can do and do in Australia, and are sure they would be a success here. In the present state of the water supply, their ability to go so long without a drink (such a good example to our magistrates) is a factor that should not be disregarded. Meanwhile, for the sake of the children, we would suggest that the experiment be extended in the way of greater variety. Rare and curious as yaks are, we shall get tired of seeing nothing else in our departmental carts. Too many yaks will be monotonous.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Saigon has been declared an infected port on account of cholera.

A branch of the Kuo-Min Tang has been established in Changsha, Hunan.

Thirteen cases of plague were notified yesterday. All were Chinese eight proved fatal.

The master of the s.s. "To Chung" reports "suspicious weather" during the voyage from Saigon.

The corpse of Nam Hoi, a notorious bandit recently executed, has been transported from Canton for burial.

Suddenly collapsing outside the Kooching Theatre in Queen's Road West yesterday afternoon, an elderly Chinese died in the ambulance on the way to the hospital.

Capt. W. J. Booker is going captain of the s.s. "Tak Sang" in place of Capt. Croft. The latter goes master of the "Lee Sang" in place of Capt. Booker. Capt. P. R. G. Cumming is going master of the "Loong-sang" vice Capt. Hussey.

The United States Shipping Board has allotted two more steamers to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company to be used in the service to the Far East, according to reports received in Japan. It is understood that these vessels will be put on the run from San Francisco this month.

A large sea snake between five and six feet in length was caught in the water near Victoria Pier, Penang, and killed. It had a tail like that of a fish and its colour was ivory white with brownish spots on the back. The natives say it is very poisonous and very seldom caught.

Chinese foreign trained doctors are planning a private hospital. The site chosen is the old Happy Valley Retreat. An initial sum of $106,000 will be spent on the project. There will be accommodation for 20 private patients, 24 general ward patients and provision for six maternity cases.

Up to the present, states the 1912 report of the Hamburg-American Line, 27 ocean-going steamers, of 70,359 tons gross, provided for in the Company's post-war building programme, have been delivered, and a further 43 vessels, of about 199,000 tons gross are still under construction.

The tale is still told of a pilot, who joined an incoming Japanese vessel. "Good morning," said the polite Japanese skipper to the pilot. "I hope you know this coast very well. I hope you know all the 'rocks'." "Ought to," replied the pilot. "I've hit most of them." (Crash!!!) "There's one of them now!"

Referring to the knighthood conferred on Sir Edward F. Crowe the Japan Chronicle believes that this is the first such honour ever given to any member of the Japan service while in the country. Sir Edward Crowe's service in Japan began 25 years ago, and he has worked very hard in the special line of commerce to which he was appointed in 1906. On the formation of the Department of Overseas Trade it was natural that Sir Edward Crowe should be appointed Counsellor.

Mr. Daniel Onderwizer, Dutch baritone, who appeared in Hongkong last winter and then went to Japan and the United States, has returned to Yokohama. While in the United States, Mr. Onderwizer appeared in concerts in several cities including Los Angeles and San Francisco. Mr. Onderwizer has gone to Japan this time to prepare the way for Alfred Mikovitch, pianist, who with Dr. Alexis Carl is coming on the "Shidomutsu Maru" shortly. Mr. Mikovitch intends to give piano recitals while Dr. Carl plans to lecture on music in Tokyo and in Yokohama. After making preparations for the arrival of Mr. Mikovitch and Dr. Carl at Yokohama, Mr. Onderwizer intends to go on to Kobe, Shanghai and Hongkong in a similar capacity.

BISHOP POZZONI AS DEFENDANT.

POLICE COURT CHARGE.

NUISANCE ON R. C. PROPERTY.

Mr. R. E. A. Webster appeared before Mr. N. L. Smith at the Magistracy this morning, on behalf of the Rt. Rev. Bishop Pozzoni, to answer four summonses for having failed to comply with various notices to abate a nuisance, to wit, accumulation of refuse in the servants' quarters and compound of St. Joseph's Building, Robinson Road, and clear the choked surface drains on the compound of the said building.

Mr. Webster said that the Bishop was in no way responsible for the building although it is the property of the Roman Catholic Mission. Mr. Webster explained that the building had been contracted out to a man named Hop Shun, to whom the notices were turned over directly they had been received.

The Magistrate said that the owner of the building was the responsible party in law.

Mr. Webster agreed and said he was prepared to admit a technical offence. He understood that the nuisances had been removed since the summonses were served. Hop Shun was the man who managed the state, and there were some Chinese tenants in the building.

Sanitary Inspector Hill said that he had visited the building this morning and found the nuisances had been removed. He had served notices on the Bishop between May 23 and 30 before taking out the summonses.

Mr. Webster said that other building operations were going on near the building and the building material was stored on the compound. He thought that this had a lot to do with the nuisance, but they could not remove the material as there was no where else to put it.

Inspector Hill said that while the building material had something to do with it, what he complained about was the presence of house refuse in the compound, the dirty state of the basement, and the choked condition of the surface drains which could be, and had, been remedied.

Remarking that the Bishop should give a good example in such matters, the Magistrate imposed a fine of $5 on each summons.

With regard to the Magistrate's remarks, Mr. Webster said that he would like to impress on the Court that the building had nothing to do with the Bishop. His Lordship was only the nominal head of the Mission, and had nothing to do with the administration of its estate. Magistrate: Quite so.

WAR MEMORIALS
UNVEILED.

CEREMONY AT JARDINES.

TWO AND INDO CHINA S.N. CO.

This morning at the offices of Messrs. Jardine Matheson and Co. Ltd., two war memorials were unveiled, one to the memory of fallen members of the firm and the other to men of the Indo China S.N. Co., who lost their lives during the war. The ceremony was of a private nature, being attended by members of the staffs of both companies. The unveiling was performed by Mr. D. G. M. Bernard, the dedicatory pronouncement being made by the Bishop of Victoria.

THE MEMORIALS.

The memorials have been erected in the big entrance hall of the office. On the right hand side stands that erected by Messrs. Jardine Matheson. It is a representation of Peace, a draped figure holding a sheathed sword in the left hand and aloft in the right hand an olive branch. At the foot of the memorial is a wreath.

The front of the pedestal bears the words: "This Statue is erected by Jardine, Matheson and Company in Honour of Those Members of the Staff who fell in the Great War, 1914-1918." The two sides of the pedestal bear the names of the fallen, as follows: R. G. Munro, M.C., Capt. 2 18th London Regt. (London Irish Rifles), Died of Wounds in France, 19th Sept. 1916; C. H. L. Symons, 2 Lt. 8th Bn. The Royal Fusiliers, Killed in France 20th Nov. 1917; E. C. Symons, Lt. 98th Bde. Machine Gun Corps, Died of Wounds in France 1st Sept. 1915; J. E. Villaden, Scots-Lieutenant 6th Bn. Cuirassiers (Dismounted), Chevalier de la Legion D'Honneur, Killed in France 4th April 1915; J. H. Bone, 2nd Lt. 6th Bn. East Surrey Regt., Killed in France 22nd July 1916; C. C. F. Cunningham, Capt. 2nd Bn. Argyle and Sutherland Hairs, Died of Wounds in France 19th August 1919; W. Davidson, Lieut. Col. 1/14th London Regt. (London Scottish), Killed in France 15th June 1915; C. E. Dunstan, Signaller D. Battery 113th Bde. R.F.A., Killed in France 1st October 1918; J. E. Gresson, 2/Lt. 2nd Bn. Cheshire Regt., Killed in France 29th May 1915.

INDO CHINA MEMORIAL.

The memorial of the Indo-China Steam Navigation Co., takes the form of a mural tablet. The names are inscribed on a brass plate, set in stone and surrounded with a bronze border. Above is a bronze representation of a ship in full sail, which in turn is surmounted by a carved stone wreath. "England expects every man to do his duty" runs the motto at the top, while below is the inscription, "Their name liveth for evermore."

In the centre, upon the metal surface, appears the following inscription: "To the Memory of Those Officers and Engineers of the Indo-China Steam Navigation Company's Fleet who during the Great War gave their lives in the service of the Empire."

The names of those commemorated are as follows: Capt. C. H. Alocok, 1st Officer J. T. Winter, Cadet S. O. Odd, 1st Eng. H. Wiseman, 3rd Eng. S. W. Fullerton, 4th Eng. P. W. Anderson. This is the first batch of names, opposite which appears on the right hand side tablet the explanatory words: "Kutwang Killed in Action with Enemy Submarine off Oran, Algerian Coast, 28th April 1918."

The second list is Capt. G. T. Tough, 1st Officer W. R. McCarthy, 1st Eng. A. Tough, 3rd Eng. W. B. Muir and 4th Eng. H. L. Rowe. These men were members of the crew of the s.s. "Onsang," foundered off the South African Coast carrying food supplies to England, 2nd July 1917. Then there follows the solitary name of 3rd Eng. McLean of the s.s. "Cheong-shing," killed in France.

In the corners at the bottom of the bronze tablet are the first and last years of the Great War, 1914-1918.

THE UNVEILING.

Mr. D. G. M. Bernard said:—Gentlemen, The idea of war with all the suffering it entails, is repugnant to the British nation and the days when war was embarked upon as an enterprise for gain are happily past. As a nation however, we are prepared to fight to the utmost limit to protect all that we hold dear. It was because of this that we declared war on the Central Empires in 1914. The call from the Mother Country for assistance was responded to magnificently from all quarters of the Empire. All members of our staff volunteered their services. Fifty-six were able to join the forces. Of these nine laid down their lives in defence of their King and country. My firm have erected a memorial to

LEARNING TO DRIVE.

WITHOUT A LICENCE.

Mr. A. Basto was summoned before Mr. J. A. Fraser at traffic time in the Police Court yesterday for having driven motor car No. 499 without a driver's licence.

Mr. Basto admitted that he never had a licence and said he did not think one was necessary as the licensed driver was sitting next to him.

Sergt. Smith said the offence took place near the Playing Grounds in Ubatham Road, Kowloon. It was a dangerous spot to learn to drive a car, as there were quite a lot of children about.

Mr. Basto said that it was the first time he had attempted to drive a car, and he was not going fast, probably not more than 10 miles per hour.

Inspector Garrod said that the police issued learners' licences for $1, which covered a period of two months.

A fine of $10 was imposed.

OUR GOVERNOR.

UNOFFICIAL DEPARTURE TO-MORROW.

The Colonial Secretary informs us that His Excellency the Governor will proceed on leave to England to-morrow and will leave unofficially from Murray Pier at 11 a.m.

The mercantile marine played its part nobly during the war and it was in a large measure due to their loyalty and self sacrifice that the war was brought to a successful conclusion. Eighteen steamers of the Indo China S.N. Co. Ltd., with 150 officers and engineers were employed in the service of the Empire. Thirteen officers and engineers serving on those ships lost their lives. To commemorate their names Capt. Rolfe, Marine Superintendent and Mr. McMurray, Engineer Superintendent, of the Company have presented a tablet which has been erected in this hall.

I now hereby unveil this memorial in memory of the men of this firm who counting not their life dear unto themselves laid it down for their King and country during the great war. "Their name liveth for evermore."

Mr. Bernard then unveiled the memorial the Bishop pronouncing the words of dedication, saying "We dedicate this memorial to the glory of God and to the pious memory of the men of this firm who have fallen in the great war. May this memorial ever remind us of their sacrifice and kindle in us a like spirit."

Mr. Bernard then crossed to the other side of the hall and unveiled the Indo-China memorial, the Bishop again pronouncing the dedication.

The Bishop continued: Gentlemen: I shall detain you but a few moments. I think it is a significant occasion that here in the head office of this leading firm in the East you have asked me as Bishop to dedicate these memorials to those of your number who have yielded up their lives for their friends in the Great War. I recall this morning those words written up on the walls of the British Legation at Peking "Let us forget" to remind all who pass by of the spirit of the men who held the Legation in 1900 and here, in the central office of this ancient and honourable firm—a firm so long bound up with the development of western industrial enterprise in the Far East—you have placed these memorials to remind all who come and go, both now and hereafter, of the spirit of the men who bought the world's liberty at so great a price and of the cause for which they so freely gave their lives. Their bodies lie scattered in the four corners of the earth but their spirits, please God, shall never die. "What I heard first I heard last" said a great American on his return to his own country. "What the British most admire is pluck." Somehow through sacrifice the progress of the world is advanced. In the greater the pain the greater the gain. These men who gave their lives as the pioneers of a new order in the faith of little children they laid down and died, in the faith that their sacrifice would not be in vain, in the faith that man would not forget the cost at which freedom had been bought, in the faith that the highest ideals that they dared to hope for—the regeneration of the world, the reunion with those they loved would yet be fulfilled. And the highest ideals are after all the truest, even though they seem to fade for ever and ever as we move. Gentlemen, before we break-up I suggest that we spend one moment in silence remembering again those men who gave their lives and all who mourn their loss and dedicating ourselves to the great task remaining before us, highly resolving that these dead shall not have lived in vain.

THE HAND.

AT THE WINDOW.

The Chinese tenant of the second floor of No. 321, Canton Road, Kowloon, was summoned before Mr. R. E. Lindsell this morning with having dumped rubbish down the air shaft into the yard of the Curtiss Manganese Pasty Factory which occupied the ground floor of the building.

Mr. W. V. Curtiss, proprietor of the factory, said that he had never seen the defendant dump the rubbish. In fact, this thing had been going on for some time and he had been unable to catch the rascals responsible for it. Before. On this occasion his watchman saw the rubbish coming from the defendant's window.

The Magistrate: Did he have a grudge against you?—I don't know, but I don't think so. The other two floors above do the same thing. I understand it is a common practice in the district.

Mr. Curtiss continued that he had lost two of his women workers as the result of this habit. It was a terrible ordeal to go through the yard, he added. The loss of his workers had put him to great inconvenience because he had to go to a lot of trouble to teach the women their work, and then had to begin all over again with new hands. One evening when he went out into the yard to wash his hands, said Mr. Curtiss, he saw a hand raised in the window above, about to throw something down, but when he appeared the hand was withdrawn. He did not think that the defendant was the person who actually threw the rubbish down, because there were several women on the floor, and the stuff usually thrown down was children's excreta.

The defendant said that there was only one staircase for all the flats, and the rubbish might have come from the other floors. When he saw Inspector Willis at the Yau-mat Station, Mr. Curtiss' watchman said that he did not see the rubbish actually coming from his window.

The Magistrate put the case back until Saturday in order of find out if the summons had been served on the right person. He also remarked that he wanted evidence that the rubbish had actually come from house No. 321, and which floor.

TROUBLE OVER A TRADE MARK.

The Sincere and the Sang Tai Companies were summoned before Mr. R. E. Lindsell at the Magistracy this morning for having infringed the trade mark of Gibson and Co., in respect of five cases of belting.

Mr. H. C. Macnamara who appeared for the complainants asked for permission to withdraw the summonses as the parties had come to an agreement as to what to do in the future. He also asked for an order for the return of the goods seized to the defendants, which had also been agreed to by the complainants in their negotiations with the defendants since the summonses had been issued.

Mr. M. M. Waston who appeared for the Sincere Co., supported Mr. Macnamara's application for a settlement out of Court.

The Magistrate asked if the application also applied to the Sang Tai Co. Mr. Macnamara said that it did, as the Sincere Co., had undertaken responsibility for the future action of the Sang Tai Co. No compensation had been paid Mr. Macnamara said, because the defendants did not know the origin.

The application was granted.

STOLEN STORES.

A SEAMAN FINED.

The case against Robert Carr, a seaman of the s.s. "President Jefferson" charged with the theft of $1,000 worth of ship's stores, was concluded before Mr. R. E. Lindsell today when the defendant was fined $250 or in default 2 months' hard labour.

Two Chinese, a broker and a junk-master who were defended by Mr. A. E. Hall were discharged on a count of having received stolen property, on the ground of insufficient evidence.

THE WATER SHORTAGE.

A Chinese boy was charged before Mr. R. E. Lindsell this morning with wasting water in West Point and interfering with a fire hydrant.

A waterworks officer said he was in West Street when he saw a crowd gathered round a fire hydrant. The defendant poked the "ball" in the hydrant with a stick, releasing a spurt of water two feet high. The crowd caught the water in condensed milk tins and emptied them into kerosene tins.

A fine of $5 was imposed.

HONGKONG TIME SIGNALS.

The Time Ball on Kowloon Signal Hill is dropped daily at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., except on Saturdays when it is dropped at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., and on Sundays and Holidays when it is dropped at 10 a.m.
The Ball is hoisted half past the 10th minute and falls next to the 6th minute. Should the ball fail to drop at the correct time it will be lowered at 5 minutes past the hour and the ordinary routine repeated at the following hour.
Should the Time Ball be out of order the above routine will be carried out with the flag "Z" on the Stern Signal mast.
Time Signals are also given at night by means of three white lamps mounted vertically on the Observatory Wireless mast.
From 8.45 to 9.00 p.m. the lamps are extinguished momentarily at the 10th, 20th, 30th, 40th, 50th, and 60th minutes of each hour.
The hours refer to Hongkong Standard Time (8 hours E. of Greenwich).

MENTHOLATUM

A LOVER'S STROLL HAS RIOTOUS ENDING.

"NOTHING DOING, M'LEAD."

The love affair of a barman and a young lady did not run smoothly, and the result was a High Court action for breach of promise before Mr. Justice Horridge, in which there were several amusing passages.

Miss Mary Ann Browning, of Pembroke road, Seven Kings, sued for breach of promise Mr. C. E. Smith, said to be chief barman at the White Hart Hotel, Green street, Forest Gate. The couple met seven years ago.

"We began to walk out," the lady told the Judge, half confidentially, "and after three years I went with him for good, you know." (Laughter.)

Mr. Justice Horridge: No! I am afraid I do not know. (Laughter.)

She received an engagement ring from Mr. Smith, and during a walk down a country lane Smith noticed that she was not wearing it.

"He seized her by the throat," she said, "tried to strangle her, twice knocked her into the ditch, and attempted to wrench rings off her fingers."

"I hit him with my umbrella," Miss Browning explained, "and it broke in two, and I shouted murder."

When a man came up on a bicycle Smith said (according to Miss Browning) "It is quite all right."

"He followed me home, said he was sorry, and gave me a new umbrella." (Laughter.)

Counsel: What happened after that?—We got on quite all right. (Laughter.)

Later, however, Miss Browning said he did not keep an appointment, and did not come to her again.

Counsel asked Miss Browning whether she was still fond of the errand boy, and she replied "Yes."

Mr. Justice Horridge: Are you still willing to marry him?—Yes.

What does your client say to that, Mr. Jones?—He says there is "nothing doing," m'leed. (Loud laughter.)

A photograph was produced which showed Miss Browning in bathing costume sitting on the shoulders of her brother-in-law.

Was Mr. Smith annoyed with you over that?—No.

The Judge: The jury had better see the picture. There are twenty ladies in bathing costume all round the brother-in-law. There seem to be safety in numbers. Is his wife there?

"Yes," replied Miss Browning, amid more laughter.

She denied that she had ever embraced her brother-in-law.

The man in the photograph was called as a witness. He was Mr. Frederick Merry, of Harringway road, West Green, and he denied kissing or embracing Miss Browning.

Mr. Justice Horridge: As a matter of curiosity I should like to ask why the photograph showing you surrounded by a multitude of females was dated "1925"? (Laughter.)

Counsel: I am told it is 1925. (Laughter.)

Mr. Justice Horridge: There must have been a transmigration of souls. (Laughter.)

Mr. Smith, the defendant, who said he earned £2 10s. a week and his "board," admitted the promise. He gave the girl £25, he said, to buy a ring.

Mr. Justice Horridge: You seem to have been pretty flush with money. You gave her £10 to buy a bracelet.

Mr. Smith was telling how he disliked the photograph when the judge intervened.

"Do you think," he said, "you could stand up in the box, and not lean over it?"

Mr. Smith: Certainly, sir. You see, I am so used to standing at the public bar counter. (Laughter.)

Mr. Justice Horridge: Well, you are not at the public bar counter now. (Laughter.)

A few minutes later his lordship remarked: "You think you are leaning over the bar again, apparently," and Mr. Smith once more straightened himself.

In further evidence, Smith said that he objected to the picture post-

"MA JONG" GOES WEST. HONGKONG CLUB'S PART.

"Ma Jong!"

If the predictions of those who follow the dizzy orbits of society's higher spheres are correct, this cryptic exclamation may very well take the place of "I bid spades!" in drawing-rooms along Park and Fifth avenues this spring.

From Palm Beach and Hot Springs people are returning full of enthusiasm for the new game of Ma Jong. It is a game 2,000 years old, played for centuries by Chinese philosophers in summer gardens by the side of running waters. It is an aristocratic game, very beautiful, indeed, and well adapted to the leisure and philosophical.

So far Ma Jong has only invaded one New York store; one that caters to the most select trade, but already orders for Ma Jong sets have come in so fast that the proprietors of the store are planning the manufacture of less expensive sets. The one they have now retails for $250.

WRESTED FROM CHINA.

Members of the English Club in Hongkong claim the credit of having wrested from China her exclusive possession of this fascinating game. They play Ma Jong for high stakes there, and, as a matter of fact, the game, if played correctly and for stakes, is only for those who can afford to lose considerable sums of an evening. Not that stakes are essential to its enjoyment. One woman has locked herself in her house just off the Avenue, spending long afternoons teaching Ma Jong to her children.

Ma Jong is a combination of dominoes, chess, Oriental allegory, and modern warfare. The Ma Jong set consist of 136 pieces, fashioned something like dominoes, made of ivory and mounted in bamboo. These pieces are in three suits, which are called "character," "bamboo," and "dot." They run from one to nine, and there are possibilities of four of a kind. There are also four pieces called North, East, South and West Wind, and three large pieces, the red, green and white dragons. East Wind is banker. Each player draws his pieces from the centre and sets them up in front of him in the shape of a miniature Chinese wall. East Wind then shakes dice to see whose wall shall be broken down and the owner of the attacked wall shakes the dice to find out from which part of his wall a tile is to be taken.

BRIDGE EXPERT ENTHUSIASTIC.

The point of the game is to prevent East Wind from blowing down one's wall. Everything about it is done backward, from the Western standpoint. The deal runs counter-clockwise, and the counting of the characters is from right to left. In place of chips, Ma Jong players use long, dotted sticks, and, in the course of an evening, so rumour around the China Sea has it, as much as $25,000 has changed hands.

A New Yorker, who writes a long list of clubs after his name in the Social Register and who is known as an inveterate bridge player, came back from Hot Springs the other day with the Ma Jong complex. "It is the prettiest game I know of," he said. "It has taken the place of bridge in my affections. The excitement of watching your wall crumbled by the onslaught of the East Wind provides a captivating thrill. I am sure that Ma Jong will catch hold here and that every country club will have its Ma Jong experts by the time summer comes."

Maybe he is right. It is a fact that one experienced bridge teacher is sitting up nights studying the rules of Ma Jong, and her rooms may soon be filled with talk of "dragons," "winds," and the sound of the crumbling of little walls. —New York Evening Post.

card. When Miss Browning came back from Harringway she told him that four of them had slept in one room, and he did not approve of this. Verdict was returned for Miss Browning with £55 damages.

ODDS AND ENDS.

MAINLY SCISSORS LOOT.

No Mourning By Request.

The bequests made by the late Mr. Charles Godfrey Le Bas, formerly of Jersey, include £10,000 to the General Dispensary for the erection of new buildings on a site which he gave some time ago and situate in St. Saviour's-road. He also leaves all his books and bookcases to that institution for the establishment of a library. The following clause was contained in the will: "Whereas I do not approve of the wearing of mourning apparel, I especially enjoin all who benefit under this, my will, to abstain from doing so on my behalf or in respect of my decease; otherwise they will be debarred from participating in my estate and bequests made in their favour will be null and void."

Birds in Mass Formation.

A remarkable sight was witnessed at Deal on March 27 when a number of Deal boatmen on watch on the beach observed a huge black cloud, estimated by them to be over one mile in length, coming rapidly across the Channel. At first they thought it heralded the coming of a violent storm but as the black mass neared the shore it was seen to be a huge thickness of birds which owing to the colour of their plumage, the boatmen thought were larks. "There were millions upon millions of them," said a boatman. "They were over a mile in length, and were flying in complete formation about 200 ft. high." The noise of the birds' wings, was likened to a fleet of aircraft. Many inhabitants of Deal were awakened from their sleep by the extraordinary volume of sound.

The Sex of Eggs.

"Science has advanced us a step farther in egg-testing, for we can now tell the sex of eggs before incubation by the aid of a little instrument lately invented. It goes by various names and is sold at different prices. It is the sexometer, sexograph, sextel, etc. but it is the same principle in each. A little piece of metal the shape of a pyramid hung by a piece of silk thread with the pointed end downwards. This is held steadily between the thumb and finger over the egg. If it contains a male germ the instrument will swing backward and forward like the pendulum of a clock, but if it is a female it will revolve round and round. It can also be used to discern the sex of animals and plants. "We have not yet tested its accuracy, so that we cannot speak from experience, but we are at present doing so," says a home paper which adds, "If it proves correct it must be of great value to the poultry-breeder, as he can decide how many cocks and pullets to hatch out."

A Test of Intelligence.

The University of Wisconsin has published an intelligence questionnaire, comprising 100 questions, compiled with the assistance of twenty-four professors, which, it claims, is a fairer and more sensible test of the average college man and woman than the one drawn up by Mr. Thomas Edison. The questionnaire is not a test of a college man's ability, because the student goes to college to train and develop his mind, and not to gather facts, but it is believed that he should have surface general knowledge, and that he should know, for example, why snow is white, what are the four horsemen of the Apocalypse, whether Mr. Bernard Shaw is young or old, why raindrops are spherical, who was not free libraries, what are three common forms of house architecture, is the word Utopia the name of a country, a book, or a man; whether articulation is performed in the lungs or the voice-box, or the head; and who wrote the song, "Old Black Joe."

Countess's Dress Bills.

Earl Cathcart was sued in the King's Bench Division by Miss Gray Ltd., Court dressmakers, to recover the sum of £215 for gowns supplied to Countess Cathcart, against whom the defendant obtained a decree nisi of divorce in February last. Defendant denied liability, and pleaded that the Countess had no authority to pledge his credit. It was stated that Countess Cathcart received an allowance of £960 a year, which she said was not sufficient. The dressmaker's bill was for eight gowns, including two evening gowns. The defendant gave notice that he would not be present for his wife's debts, but that was a month after the purchases in question. Plaintiff's head saleswoman said ladies often purchased ten or twelve dresses at a time. At the conclusion of the evidence Mr. Justice McCardie said: "I am not going to give judgment now because I think the time has come when the burdens of husbands and the rights of shopkeepers should be definitely stated, and I shall consider my judgment and state the law to the best of my ability, and with the utmost despatch."

"THE CUCKOO'S SECRET."

REWARD OF 4 YEARS' WATCHING.

The strangest experiences ever collected by an English naturalist are recorded in precise and scientific terms by Mr. Edgar Chance in his book on "The Cuckoo's Secret."

That the cuckoo was last summer filmed for the first time while engaged in laying in another bird's nest is now general knowledge, and the film will be exhibited in the coming months all over the country. It carries in picturesque and pleasing form the proof of new discoveries about this strange bird; but the written word tells much that is invisible on the film. Not one but many discoveries were made in the course of four years' watching of one female cuckoo on a Worcestershire common.

By infinite patience, by help of a little committee of expert watchers, by ingenious deduction, by the spending of many hundred pounds on apparatus and organisation, strange facts about the cuckoo (observed by observers for the two thousand years during which—as we know—the cuckoo has been studied) have at last been brought to light and illustrated. In his third and fourth seasons Mr. Chance could prophesy exactly on what day the cuckoo would lay in what nest. He had only to wire to London for an operator, put him in the arranged hide or beach-covered wigwam an hour or two before the event to make quite sure of a picture.

HER MESMERIC INFLUENCE.

Almost all that is peculiar about the female cuckoo is illustrated; her mesmeric influence on the foster-parents, the alternate attraction to her and repulsion; her practice of removing an egg from the nest before laying her own; her militant protection of her pitch or territory; her fidelity year after year to one spot and one species of foster-parent; her amazing speed—some 8 seconds—over the whole process—all these and other points about both cuckoo and victim find a place.

The whole is a singular, a unique triumph in persistent and scientific observation.

No one has ever before collected so many eggs—61—from one bird; no one has ever before proved that she may lay as many as 21 in season; no one has ever before proved that the egg is laid, not placed in the victim's nest by the beak; no one has ever known that the focus of attention on the victim's hours, even days, before the due moment comes.

An international controversy has been aroused. Probably cuckoos vary immensely in their habits, and "Mary Pickford," as Mr. Chance called his favourite bird, is not perhaps altogether a type. But no exception subtracts from the value of this most remarkable series of operations, of which all British naturalists should be proud.

PRISON LIFE.

AMERICAN MILLIONAIRE'S EXPERIENCE.

John Dodge, the millionaire, who left Detroit jail on completing a five-day imprisonment sentence for exceeding the motor-car speed limit, told the reporters that the popular conception of prison life was erroneous, and that personally he had found a humane administration of the system of self-government by the inmates which enabled him to retain a corkscrew. Dodge was convicted by personal experience that prison law is most successful when it is reformative rather than punitive, and he hopes that the system of the golden rule administered by "councils of prisoners" now prevailing in various American jails should be extended generally. The young millionaire has another charge of reckless driving pending against him, also a charge of violating the prohibition law, "inasmuch as he, contrary to the Volstead Law, did feloniously carry in his automobile divers forbidden beverages, to wit, whisky, gin, and cognac," and therein, one might add, followed the universal practice of midnight joy-rides in the United States.

MATADOR GORED.

TOSSED AFTER KILLING FIVE BULLS.

After having killed five bulls in rapid succession in a public bull fight in the arena Rayonne, the well-known matador Saleri II was severely gored. Flashed with his continued success and wishing to impress the excited audience with his skill, Saleri neglected the result that the enraged bull was able to rush at the powerless man and toss him into the air. The bull's little girl is suffering from tubercles pierced his neck, narrowly missing the throat, and the matador was carried away to hospital very seriously wounded.

LADY RHONDDA.

RESTITUTION DECREE GRANTED.

Viscountess Rhondda, of Chelsea Court, S.W., petitioned in mail week for a decree for the restitution of conjugal rights. Her husband is Sir Humphrey Mackworth, 7th baronet, to whom she was married on July 9, 1908, at the Parish Church, Christchurch, Monmouthshire. The suit was not contested.

Examined by Mr. Bayford, K.C., her counsel, Lady Rhondda said her maiden name was Thomas. At the time of the marriage her husband had not come into the baronetcy. They lived at Oaklands, Caerleon, Monmouthshire. There had been no children of the marriage.

Mr. Bayford: Did you live happily with your husband for a good many years?—Yes.

In 1920 had you to be a good deal in London on business matters?—I had.

And was your husband living principally in the country?—Yes, almost entirely.

In September 1921, Lady Rhondda said she was abroad for a month or two. She wrote to her husband, but received no answer to her letters. After her return she got a letter from him on November 14, 1921, addressed from Oaklands, Caerleon as follows:

Dear Margaret:—It is idle not to realise that the present position is impossible. We cannot go on as we are. I have thought the whole thing over most seriously and have come to the conclusion that it is better we should definitely separate and that I should live with you no more.

I am sorry to write like this, but see no other alternative.—Yours, Humphrey.

She then wrote to him from Chelsea Court, London:

My dear Humphrey,—Do you really mean by your letter that the past 13 years are to go for nothing and that all we have to admit is failure?

I can hardly think this can be so, and if possible I want to try and prevent a separation. So I am writing to ask you to reconsider your resolution and to resume your life with me again.—Yours affectionately, MARGARET.

He replied from Caerleon: Dear Margaret,—I have your letter of November 30. I am afraid I must admit that our married life has been a failure, the reasons why you know as well as I do.

That being so, it is useless to ask me to reconsider any position, which is final, and was only taken by me after fully weighing everything.—Yours,

HUMPHREY.

Lady Rhondda added that Sir Humphrey had not been back.

Mr. Justice Horridge pronounced a restitution decree, with costs, directing that it should be complied with within 14 days of service.

SUDDEN FORTUNE.

PARIS' MOST DESERVING CASE.

All Paris is congratulating Mlle. Germaine Chalandre, a young clerk of the Paris branch of a New York company, who has just won a prize of 140,000 francs.

A newspaper offered a marriage fund for "the most deserving Paris working girl to be selected by cinema audiences, while the amount was substantially increased by the leading department stores of the city until a sum of 140,000 francs was available. When the result was conveyed to Mlle. Chalandre she wept with joy, and she was again overcome by the thunderous cheering which greeted her as she stepped forward at the Gaumont Palace to receive the prize.

The lucky girl is a victim of the war. She lived with her parents and three other children at Guisane (Aisne), and when the Germans captured the territory her father sheltered some dozen British soldiers for several months. When the enemy discovered this they summarily executed the father and the remainder of the family were sent to Germany as prisoners. Mlle. Germaine herself being sentenced to a term of hard labour. After between two and three years' captivity the family returned home, and Mlle. Chalandre soon died leaving Germaine as the sole support of the family.

Removing to Paris, she obtained to get into striking position, with the result that the enraged bull was able to rush at the powerless man and toss him into the air. The bull's little girl is suffering from tubercles pierced his neck, narrowly missing the throat, and the matador was carried away to hospital very seriously wounded.

"SPLENDID BANKRUPT."HOOLEY'S RISE AND FALL.

Ernest Terah Hooley (who was sentenced at the Old Bailey to three years' penal servitude for conspiracy to defraud in connection with the promotion of the Jubilee Cotton Mills Ltd., was at the summit of his career in the Diamond Jubilee year, 1897. The great Dunlop Tyre "deal" of £5,000,000 had brought him into prominence, and it is probable that no the eve of setting out for London he was worth £350,000.

Born 65 years ago in Nottingham, Hooley was withdrawn from school at 13. His father was a former "twist" worker in a lace factory, who set up in a small way on his own account at Long Eaton. Young Hooley worked first at the lace machines and then as a salesman. His first flotation was the conversion of his father's business into a limited liability company. Later he set up as a stockbroker in Nottingham.

He arrived in London in April 1896. He was a young man from Nottinghamshire who had come upon the City like a whirlwind. He installed himself in a suite of eight rooms, for which he used to say that he paid £200 a week. Here he received his court, peers and commoners. City men of all grades of wealth and respectability—anyone in fact who was still not too rich to want to make a bit more.

From 1894 to 1898 he floated 25 companies having a total nominal capital of £18,010,000. Fifteen of these were cycle companies with a total nominal capital of £10,035,000.

Of these £11,132,442 went to him as his "consideration." His sale price to the companies of the properties that they took over from him. For these properties he had paid £1,103,394.

On the figures he had £5,028,906 on the deal, not a bad four years' work for man of 28. Yet the net result, so far as Ernest Terah Hooley was concerned, was on the wrong side of the ledger. His methods of promoting were such that of his little more than five millions of gross profits, £4,097,781 was disbursed. At the time of his spectacular smash he gave simple "promotion expenses" at £945,912.

Many companies which Hooley promoted have remained first class companies.

"I have never said," he remarked once, "that I can manage a business. That is not my line. I am a dealer, a loan dealer. My affair is to buy a business and sell a business, and when it is bought and sold I have nothing further to do with it."

He had the reckless prodigality of a born optimist. Even as a bankrupt he reckoned he was living at the rate of £12,000 a year. Small wonder that he was called "the splendid bankrupt."

While he was solvent, living at the rate of a million a year, he seems to have had the capacity of spending all he made. He bought great country estates; one little item was £10,000 to stock the wine cellars of one of them. He bought a beautiful yacht. He made a magnificent gift of gold plate to St. Paul's Cathedral, a gift which later on was found rather embarrassing. Lastly, there was the fund of £400,000 which he announced he had invested for charities.

So the money went. There followed in July 1898 bankruptcy proceedings with liabilities of about £700,000. Hooley has made many reappearances since that spectacular fall of 1898; but they have been pale reflections of those crowded three years of feverish life. In February 1912 he was sentenced at the Old Bailey to 12 months in the second division for obtaining £2,000 from a young mechanical engineer of Rochdale by false pretences in stating that a particular estate which he was selling was not encumbered.

Otherwise during the years following his decline he has lived at Risleigh Hall, in Derbyshire, or Papworth Hall, in Cambridgeshire, which, he stated on one occasion publicly, friends had bought after his bankruptcy and given to his wife.

"POOR" ON £30,000LORD CLANRICARDE'S WAYS.

The Duke de Stacpoole, whose book "Irish and Other Memories" was to be published early in May by Messrs. A. M. Philpot Ltd., has talked with Victor Hugo and has many interesting things to say of interesting people.

The first chapter, which appeared in the Yorkshire Evening News by arrangement with the publishers, deals with Ireland in bygone days.

"There was a time," states the duke in this chapter, "when County Galway was peopled by a numerous and hospitable gentry who spent money freely. When bad times came in 1847 many of these families disappeared. The most important absentee landlord was Lord Clanricarde, frequently called by his tenants 'Clan Rack Bent,' though his rents were never raised, who died at an advanced age only a few years ago. He smoked a pipe, and, considering himself a poor man on the trifling income of about £30,000 a year, he could sometimes be seen in the smoking-room eating the lunch which he had brought with him in his pocket wrapped in a bit of paper. He was a great judge of china and objets d'art; a noted collector; one of the highest authorities and most regular attendants at Christie's sales. Indeed, the only thing he ever gave freely was an opinion on these matters."

"Lord Lascelles, who has inherited his great-uncle's estates, bids fair to equal his great-grandfather in popularity and esteem, and hopes are entertained of his coming to reside in Ireland. My great grandfather had a residence in Grosvenor-place, London, where he constantly entertained the exiled French King Louis XVIII, and on the restoration of the latter after the defeat of Napoleon, Louis bestowed upon him titles and honours and persuaded him to establish himself and his family in Paris, where he died in 1824."

"An amusing character whom I used to know was Andy Dolphin, who belonged to an old family but lived in a very rough and ready fashion. His hunting kit was peculiar, inasmuch as he donned a faded pink coat and adorned his head with a round hat rather the worse for wear. An extensive farmer, he appeared to spend most of his time at his, or in trying to sell horses privately. Miss Grafton Bell (now Lady Saltoun) once sent over her groom and horse to his residence before a hunt, when, to his disgust the man found he was expected to sleep on dirty straw and that no provision at all was made for the horse."

"Another time when I happened to call on Dolphin I saw a cloud of smoke issuing from the kitchen through the worn boards into the dining room where we were sitting. I called his attention to it, fearing the house was on fire; but he calmly told me that he was well insured, and proceeded to pour whisky into his cracked tumbler!"

CASINO BAD DEBTS.NICE LOSES £80,000 THIS SEASON.

The Casino authorities at Nice have taken action against Mr. George Moore, described as an Armenian and naturalised citizen of the United States, who is alleged to have passed worthless cheques amounting to £23,200. These cheques were accepted by the Casino authorities and were, it is alleged, returned by Mr. Moore's bank when presented for payment.

Mr. George Moore was, very well known at the Nice Casino as well as at Cannes and Deauville. He astonished everyone by the daring quality of his play, often playing the full stake of £400 half a dozen times in succession and never seeming perturbed when he lost. He seemed to have extraordinary runs of fortune, sometimes winning a large sum. He left Nice recently accompanied by his wife.

Mr. Moore was in Paris when the summons in connection with the alleged worthless cheques reached him, and at once returned to Nice. He came before the examining magistrate on the charge of having drawn worthless cheques. He stated that he had the money with which to pay them all and promised to arrive at a settlement in the course of a couple of days. He has been requested meanwhile to remain at Nice and to hold himself at the disposal of the Nice police.

The Casino at Nice has been a heavy sufferer from worthless cheques this season, and large amounts, it is stated, are due from a man who was last seen in Marseilles, while there are many cases of small amounts. It was reliably stated that the total losses amount to about £30,000.
